rupt judges" have dragged them into the issue. "So, when Earl Warren wrote that law 'banning segregation' the rest of them (judges) began saying me, too." They gave false hope to the Negro. They (the Negroes) have every right in the Constitution except social equality.

When the Supreme Court ruled that integration must be started as soon as possible, Collins asserted that "every federal judge began saying 'me, too' and began forcing schools to integrate."

He charged that integration will be a disgrace to both races. "I'm not a lawyer, thank God, but the ruling is unconstitutional. There is nothing in the 14th amendment that can make people equal socially. They have every legal right, but social equality."

"I couldn't go to the Supreme Court or any of their homes or the President's home because there's a thousand classes in the United States."

"There's only one Great Moment and that is in salvation and grace—that's the only time we are equal. They (the Supreme Court) added to the 14th amendment to make our children run, eat and play together."

Collins charged that the "yellow-livered politicians, lawyers and communists" are causing all the trouble and that "no latitude has been allowed to work out his thing. They are going down," he went on, "retrogressing."

He added that the Negroes know God made them different and that the Supreme Court is asking 90 per cent of the American people to bow to the will of 10 per cent. A revolution is in the offing, if integration continues, Collins assured.

"We must go to the Bible," Collins said. "But we ask India and other nations what to do."

After continuing the progression of civilization through Cain, Abel and Seth, Collins leveled on school superintendents.

"These superintendents are afraid to death to take a stand on this thing," he said before half a dozen or more "amens" approved his statement.

"God bless the teachers, but you see them falling before the tower of Babel afraid to death to say anything."

Collins said that God is the emblem of white and purity and God made man in his own image.

"Cain is everything opposite of God, who is white, and God put a mark on Cain and he is black. God will be with us if we have courage." Again Collins traced the genealogy of mankind down to Noah, when God destroyed every human being except Noah and his three sons "from whom we all came."

That is when mankind began separating, beginning with Canaan, a grandson of Noah.

"The Bible said the Canaanites are the ones who shall serve and be servants. It is not a disgrace to be a servant of God."

De-segregation is an instrument of the devil, according to Collins.

"That man on the Supreme Court is ramming this down our throats."

"The Jews never mixed nor mingled and the Negro respects pure black blood. We are going to help him, not shoot him down. If us Sunday School superintendents will go to jail for contempt the jails won't hold us."

God is for white supremacy, Collins continued, and cited the changing of language by God when he became angry with infidels building the tower of Babel.

"The Supreme Court is trying to make your daughter and son mix and mingle with the Negroes and the sad part of it is that the Negro knows it too."

Every civilization known to history has crumbled when black blood has been mingled with white blood, from the time of the Egyptians thousands of years before Christ.

"Egypt crumbled in 100 years when the Ethiopians mingled with them. You see, the devil desegregated them."

Collins told of how the Egyptians became wealthy and independent until they brought in Ethiopians as slaves and their women began admiring the tall, muscular males.

Then the Caesars brought in Negroes, after 800 years of white supremacy, and they were destroyed, Collins said.

"France had its Moroccos and its government has fallen 23 times in the last 10 years. Now America is last and next."

Collins cited Abraham Lincoln's comment in his fourth debate with Stephen Douglas in 1858 in which he opposed integration of white and Negroes, socially and politically, stating that he was in favor of the white race being assigned the "superior position."

"Liberation was right," Collins added.

Collins said that 17 1/2 million Negroes voted for Earl Warren, who by one stroke of the pen, has made them equal to whites.

He concluded his talk with a plea to the women present "not to stay out of this."

He prayed that "God give the Supreme Court guidance and not let them be instruments of the devil... help this gathering in their trial right here... guide us in the way we should go."

Chairman West asked the gathering "to think this over" and use the "pioneering spirit of our forefathers."

"Let's band together and let the whole state of Texas and the United States know how we feel about it," West said. "I'm willing to get out of business rather than sacrifice my principles."

Webb B. Joiner, who was subsequently elected secretary-treasurer, told the men and women to get their poll taxes paid or exemptions "so that we can speak with authority" at election time. He asked that voters also sweat politicians out on the subject of segregation.

Chairman West appointed Albert North of the Webb community, and Foy Curry and Reed Schnorr, both of Mansfield, to a nominating committee. West also read for public information that four other committees are needed: information and education, political and elections, membership and finances and legal advice.
